features

Fancy footwork: what does it say to you?

3

by Delia Bradshaw

When a group of women educators began sharing their stories of life and work in the world of adult education, the result was a book called Fancy Footwork.

There's a blind dog in my classroom...

7

by Margaret Kelly

Creating a safe and productive learning environment for a vision-impaired student with a guide dog.

Working towards strength-based adult education

11

by Crina Virgona and Peter Waterhouse

Strength-based practice aims at empowering clients in therapy, and it could be equally effective in adult learning.

regulars

Practical Matters

17

CGEA workshops at the VALBEC evening forum brought much enlightenment, according to Lisa Bartels and Pauline Morrow; and Sharon Templeman looks at a new post-graduate qualification for literacy and numeracy teachers in VET.

Technology Matters

22

What can you learn in Second Life? Virtually anything, says Glenda McPherson.

Open Forum

27

Lynne Fitzpatrick and Liz Davidson tell us more about implementing the new CGEA.

What's Out There

28

Sarah Deasey reviews Literacy Face to Face, a resource for volunteer tutors and their trainers.

Policy Update

30

Michelle Circelli details the latest NCVER research into adult literacy and numeracy training, and Lynne Matheson reports on last May's 'Living Literacies' VALBEC conference.

Foreign Correspondence

34

Workshops and networking, and—being Ireland—the correct application of poetry, made a success of the annual Research and Practice in Adult Literacy conference in Belfast.

Beside the Whiteboard

35

Lynne Matheson draws on a 1997 interview with Nick Oliver before hitting 'Fast Forward' to get a current update on his career in teaching computer literacy.
